say [33.727] this explanation is examined whether this could be true or not. [11.992] In research there are different positions towards a possible real relationship between [15.341] media violence and aggression. First of all, [20.202] two opposite views exist. On the one hand, it is claimed that this cannot be possible and one that says that this is a sufficient explanation. However, there are [16.570] theoretical problems in connection with this explanation. First, media violence is hard to define and measure. What is enough violent so that children tend to kill their friends? [10.971] causes schoolmates and schoolmates. And find how to measure the extent of violence. Secondly, [11.037] the relationship between media violence and [14.273] aggression tends to be a problem. Some researchers say that there is no connection at all, others see a connection. Thirdly, [11.814] even there is a connection, many researchers are not sure how they effect each other. [15.930] One explanation is that too much violence is caused by children to use violence as a form of problem-solving. [32.099] Thirdly, in research there also different approaches to the problem of school shooting. One is the [10.555] approach is the [10.972] attitude towards the e are very important arguments to explain the behavio of gunmen. The most important problem is the quest ion how children or youths tend to kill their own schoolmates and then, often hinse lves. School shooting is a very spontaneous and violent act

 . However, there must be trigger factors. that causes this violence. One important possibility for rease archers could be to examine the school and the teachers and how this gunman behave. One important problem could be the lack of success and social contacts. A social functioning social network is ver y important for young people. All in all, this school shooting i s a very complex problem that could be caused by many problems and psychological problems. One dimension - dimensional explanations are not sufficient from my point of view. A lot of research has to be done in this area. What has happened happens before to prevent further school shootings. In the aftermath of Winnenden
